DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is in response to the application filed 11/03/04.
2. Claims 1, 2, 4 – 7 have been examined.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1, 2, 4, 5 & 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Parthesarathy et al. USPN 6,353,926, in view of Lloyd et al. USPN 6,779,178 B1.

Regarding claim 1, Parthesarathy discloses a method of updating computer software and/or data in a recipient computer comprising the steps of:

said recipient computer sending an update request as an e-mail message to an owner computer (Col. 2:17 – 23);

said owner computer automatically analyzing the update request and preparing a corresponding software and/or data update response (Col. 6:1 – 31, see “automatically updating the user’s computer every time a new update is detected”) in response to receiving update request email (Col. 2: 20 – 25, see email and also see “(.lnk file)”);

said owner computer automatically sending said software and/or data update to said recipient computer (Col. 6:1 – 31, 10:1 – 5). Parthesarathy doesn’t explicitly disclose wherein the software and/or data update comprises an email message having one or more files to be updated are sent as attachment files in the e-mail message. Parthesarathy does disclose communicating information to the user regarding upgrades via email (1:58 – 61). Lloyd in an analogous art discloses “ the customized may be delivered on media, such as a CD-ROM...the e-mail customization system may transmit the customized software as an e-mail attachment..." (16: 49 – 52). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine Parthesarathy and Lloyd because, it would have enabled installing software automatically using an installation electronic mail client (Lloyd, 17: 1 – 7).

Regarding claim 2, a method as claimed in claim 1, in which the update request is compiled at the recipient computer by reference to a data directory, and the software and/or data update is compiled at the owner computer by reference to the same data directory, only files identified in the update request being updated in the software and/or data update (Parthesarathy, Col.10: 1 –10, for data directory see registry).

Regarding claim 4, Parthesarathy discloses all the claimed limitations as applied in claim 1. Parthesarathy doesn't explicitly disclose a method as claimed in claim in which the software/and or data update is protected by a password. Parthesarathy does disclose that "A security enhancement can also be incorporated wherein the software decides which site is authorized to update the software" (8:53 – 55). Lloyd in an analogous art discloses verifying email passwords and addresses against customer information (16: 35 – 40). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine Parthesarathy and Lloyd because, using a password would make it more secure.

Regarding claim 5, a method as claimed in claim 1, in which the e-mail update request is transmitted via the Internet (Parthesarathy, Col.10: 1 – 5).

Regarding claim 7, a method as claimed in claim 1, in which the computer software and/or data to be updated consists of one of a virus signature, a software application or data to be backed-up by the owner computer (Parthesarathy, for software application see FIG. 3, 108 see software update).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 2122

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Parthesarathy et al. USPN 6,353,926 as applied in claim 1, in view of Lloyd et al. USPN 6,779,178 B1 and further in view of Cantos et al. USPN 6,529,784 B1.

Regarding claim 6, Parthesarathy as modified by Lloyd discloses all the claimed limitations as applied in claim 1 above. The combination of Parthesarathy and Lloyd doesn't explicitly disclose that a firewall protects computer through which it communicates in sending said e-mail update request. Lloyd does mention a password protected web cite (7:35) which is being presented in combination with Parthesarathy as discussed above. Cantos discloses a fire wall in a similar configuration, (Cantos, Col. 4:59, see firewall). Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine Parthesarathy and Lloyd with Cantos because, it ensures that communications between the control server and agents associated with the customer network are secure and uncorrupted (Cantos, Col. 4:56 – 60, also Col.10: 56 – 60).

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 2, 4 – 7 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
